

Cultural Resource Management for the Northeast

Preserving and Protecting Cultural Resources in the Northeast

Work with a cultural resource management (CRM) firm with local experience in New England and New York that has experts who understand the concerns and values specific to this culturally rich and historical area of the country. TRC is one of the nation's largest cultural resource management firms and have successfully completed hundreds of projects across New England, including projects in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, and throughout the state of New York.

Across the region, TRC has earned a reputation for excellence, completing projects in a professional and timely manner, at or below estimated budgets, for transportation projects, solar and wind developments, transmission line and pipeline development and numerous hydroelectric relicensing projects. The company maintains in-house facilities for most aspects of archaeological analyses and report production.
